

POETRY.

From the Literary Gazette.
The Soldier's Wife to her Husband.

By Mrs. Lydia Jane Pierson.

Go, then—since thy duty calls thee,
Peril all for honor's sake;
But if any harm befalls thee,
This devoted heart must break.
Blame me not that tears are starting—
Tears become the soldier's wife
When her loved one is departing
For the battle's deadly strife.
'Tis a fearful word that parts
Plighted hands and wedded hearts.

Many a night shall I be weeping,
With a sobbing prayer for thee,
While on loving bosoms sleeping
Others are from anguish free;
I shall dream of thousand dangers
Waiting all along thy way—
Sickness in a land of strangers,
Death amid the battle fray—
See thee writhe, and hear the groan,
Wounded, helpless, and alone.

Such dread visions will unnerve me;
Yet my constant prayer shall be,
That Jehovah may preserve thee,
And return thee safe to me.
Ah, my love—though fierce and cruel
War's fierce actions always are,
Mercy is a glorious jewel,
Which the conqueror ought to wear.
Beautiful, its healing rays,
Beam o'er victory's bleeding bays.

Husband!—when the ranks are reeling
In the dark and venal strife;
When the suppliant foe is kneeling
Think upon his absent wife;
How she feareth—prayer—mourneth,
In his dear, though humble home,
Unto which till he returneth
Joy and peace can never come.
Do not doom her to despair,
Think that I am pleading there.

When above the city surges
Conquest's crimson crest wave,
Stay the blow that vengeance urges
Be thou merciful as brave.
Think, thy foes are lovers—brothers—
Maidens plead for them to God;
They have daughters—they have mothers—
Oh, how precious is their blood!
Listen, love, to love's strong plea,
They are loved, as I love thee!

A Speech.

The Logansport (Pa.) Journal gives an account of the presentation of a flag from the ladies of Cass county to the democrats of Pulaski, at which ceremony a Mr. Grooves is reported to have made a speech of which the following is a part:

"Fellow citizens! not alone in our district is Democracy with its head and ears erect like a gnat, but the whole world is on fire. In France, where the very bricks of the human sidewalk were down-trodden and herring-boned by the cunning of Whig glory, they now glory in being free. France! glorious France! where celestial soups are distilled from discarded boots, and the epigastrium is titivated by the fragrance of frogs stuffed with garlic, is a noble republic! (Mr. G. fanned himself.) Germany feels the shock to the bottom of her beer vats; and the cry of freedom rousing the coiled up sausages of Bologna encompasses Italy with the links of liberty! The time of despotism is come! The dinner bell of tyranny has rung the oppressors to their meal! Henceforth and forever our ancestors snatched the burning brand of regeneration from the hands of timid posterity, and planted it deep in the bowels of the future! Let it grow!"

"But the end is not yet—(the end of his speech.) The siccous of a moneyed desolation sheds its crocodile tears over the infuriated instincts of toothless wretchedness throughout all England, and the cry among her thirsty and mowed millions is for 'Gin! gin! and no work!' This is the watchword, that even while I speak to you, rings in the ears of Queen Victoria, and causes her to pause in her fitful career! The despot of Prussia turns Prussian blue at his fate, and Austria gapes in dismay at the howl that tells of the approaching knife that is raised to wrench her apart at the hinges."

"And is there no room for reform in America? Can all do as they like? May some of us do nothing? Have we liberty of conscience, or, in fact, have we any conscience? Fellow citizens! I hope the news from Pulaski will sweep the vagrant act and other black laws from Indiana—I do! Gentlemen, take this flag! Fair hands wrought it, and bold hands carried it! Cherish it in your heart of hearts—and should I ever die, my proudest wish would be, to be interred in the meanest puddle in Pulaski!"

Musical—"O, come along, John, the fiddler's son—
Ain't you glad the day's work's done!"

There is a man up country, says an exchange, who always pays for his paper in advance. He has never been sick a day in his life, never had any corns or toothache, his potatoes never rot, the weevil never eats his wheat, the frost never kills his corn or beans, his babies never cry in the night, and his wife never scolds!

AGRICULTURE.

Preservation of Apples.

In the London Gardener's Chronicle we find the following account of the mode of preserving apples adopted by a gentleman in Herefordshire. We are of the opinion it would succeed any where.

"He covers the floor of his cellar, with hurdles, two in thickness, and on these he puts a little straw, upon which the apples are placed without further care or attention, except removing all that appear to be faulty as he places them in the cellar; and he thinks it is unnecessary to use any particular care in this respect. He has at present, 110 bushels of apples thus heaped up in his small cellar; two or three times a week, he gives a good wetting with fresh water, as much as he thinks will wet the whole of them. This water drains off through the straw and hurdles, into a well. In this way his apples keep until the time he usually disposes of them, the best to make him a return after Christmas. At present the apples look as well and as firm as if just gathered, and I understand that during the last ten years, they have always kept just as well and as fresh, as now. How much less troublesome and easy of application for keeping large quantities of fruit, than storing them away in dried sand, or shelves, or in boxes, or in many other ways highly recommended."

To Remove Stains from Furniture.—Take of rock salt of lemons, powdered, half an ounce, and spirits of salt, six ounces; mix them, and drop a little on the spot. Rub with a soft cork till the spot disappears, then wash off with cold water. Stains in mahogany may thus be easily removed, and without leaving any blemish.

How Holland was Gathered Together.

No description can convey the slightest notion of the way in which Holland has been gathered particle by particle, out of the waste of waters of the strange aspect of the country, and the incessant vigilance and wonderful precautions by which it is preserved. Holland is, in the fullest sense an alluvion of the sea. It consists of sand and mud rescued from the ocean, and banked up on all sides. Produced by the most dexterous and indefatigable exertions, it can be maintained only by artificial means. If the efforts by which it was redeemed from the waters were to be relaxed, the ocean would reassert its rights, and the whole kingdom would be submerged. The slightest accident might sweep Holland into the deep. It was once nearly undermined by insects. Indeed the necessity of destroying insects is so urgent, that the stork a great feeder upon them, is actually held in veneration, and almost every species of bird is religiously protected from injury. Birdnesting is strictly prohibited by law. The drift of all this is palpable enough. But it is curious that the very existence of a great country should depend upon such guaranties.—Bentley's Miscellany.

CONJUGAL SOLICITUDE.—We find the following exemplification of the true love never did run smooth sentiment, in a Cincinnati paper:

The disconsolate husband hailed from Dayton, and addressed the following appeal to the city Marshall.

"Mister Marshall, mine frow runned away mit von dirty Dutchman dis morning she has but one eye, vich black—tother eye ish black too, but she has lost him.—She's ash big as von hogs head. I vants you to ketch her mit the telegraph, and send her home to her pappy, for if she dont cooms, I vips her like do devil."

ALEX. HAVENS.

WISE WITNESS.—Two neighbors went to law about a lot of boards, one asserting he had delivered so many; while the other contended that he received a less number. The case went to trial, and the plaintiff brought up a witness who swore plump and straight to the contents of the pile as charged. The defendant taken all aback at length collected his faculties sufficiently to whisper to his lawyer:

"That fellow can't count—he is swearing utterly at random!"

"Look here my good fellow," said the lawyer, "how many are twice five?"

"The witness hesitated, but a wag just behind him softly whispered in his ear, 'Eleven.' 'Eleven by—' said the now confident witness, 'and nobody told me neither!'"

The Boston Transcript states that on Friday last a lady in that city received the following letter, containing the sum of $59:

"I herin enclose the amount of a sum of money which I dishonestly took from your former husband several years ago,—I have been on the sea many years, and about six months ago I was in great danger of going to the bottom, when all my sins stared at me and I resolved to repent if God spared my life. When I came ashore I found your husband was dead.—I have searched for you and am thankful to find where you lived. I hope you will forgive me, as I think God has. The way of the transgressor is hard."
